International Creative Papers Conference

ICPC Organizing Committee

I Academic Outline

1. Objective

The International Creative Papers Conference (ICPC) is an academic event where researchers from around the world present their innovative research. This conference provides a platform for students and professionals to present creative and outstanding papers, whether they are invention papers, academic papers, or other forms of research. The main objective of ICPC is to facilitate the exchange and presentation of exceptional papers from leading global scholars who play a pivotal role in science, technology, and the knowledge economy.

ICPC aims to lead the convergence of science, technology, and economic activities with ESG principles by promoting the presentation of creative and independent research and learning papers. This international conference, which involves participation from over 20 countries, is a significant academic event co-hosted by WIIPA (World Invention Intellectual Property Associations), the CU Media group, the Korea University Invention Association, and various universities and academic societies both domestically and internationally.

Additionally, the presented papers will be published and registered in an ISSN (International Standard Serial Number) journal, thereby contributing to the academic achievements of the participants.
